Mr. William J. Casey
Director, Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Casey,

During the Conference on Intelligence directed so very well by [redacted] at the Agency two weeks ago I was so very pleased to meet you and various members of your staff. I am writing to express my gratitude to you and your staff for the truly excellent program which gave twenty-five college professors a much better perspective on Central Intelligence -- its objectives and successes and failures. The format and content of the Conference enhanced my understanding and gave me a deeper appreciation of the planning and operations in gathering intelligence.

But more than this I came away with a greater awareness of the dedication which you and your staff have. The morale was excellent, the enthusiasm genuine: I was impressed by the wholesomeness of the Agency. And I am so very grateful that you and the staff serve in this most difficult job of gathering intelligence data.

Sincerely yours,
